

2019-03-01 Thursday Belen Llobell C2 Marek Connell English notes 1,5

abruptly (bruscamente)

overnight (de la noche al día)

to bluff (engañar/tirarse un farola)

forte (strong point)

to flock to move or go together in a crowd.

"tourists flock to Oxford in their thousands"

Remnants (los restos)

Scattered (esparcido) across

To marvel (maravillarse)

To hark back to +object.

mention or remember (something from the past).

"if it was such a rotten holiday, why hark back to it?"

• evoke (an older style or genre).

"paintings that hark back to Constable and Turner" synonyms: recall, call to mind, look back to, turn back to, cause one to remember, cause one to recollect, cause one to think back to

"these newest styles hark back to the seventies"

The runner could feel the blood coursing through her veins.

Nerve centre (centro neurálgico)

To have an inkling of curiosity.

Revere (venerar)